The Royal Limburg Golf is a championship course in Houthalen in the Province of Limburg (B). This highly strategic and diverse course was designed by Fred Hawtree in 1966.

Its typically British design is very natural and features several dog-legs that require a well-thought-out placement of the first shot.

The golf course is located in the middle of the "Tenhaagdoornheide" nature reserve, half of which is in a heathland area and the other half in a more wooded area.

Regularly renewed and adapted, the course is one of the great classics to play when visiting Belgium.

Several new tees, well-positioned, add a competitive touch to the course and are a small delight. The arrival at the 18th hole, with the setting sun at your back and the beautiful terrace of the clubhouse in the background, is the beautiful apotheosis of this high-quality course and club.
